many of the central ministers. It is this rejig, with an apparent focus on votes, that poses many uncomfortable questions on the state of our polity.

Even when three-fourths of a century has passed since we gained independence, why is it that caste and re-style app- based on set targets and deliverables. This was a welcome move. If done on performance and merit, this would have set a benchmark for governance and ensured greater accountability of ministers towards their jobs. But with political considerations also coming in
